

Permission To Publish Certain Information On The Church Web Site

In an effort to stimulate spontaneous communication and foster a community perspective among the members and friends of our Congregation the Web Site Working Group (WSWG) publishes the names of church leadership, including, but not limited to, those elected by the Congregation or appointed by the Church Council to further the mission and goals of the Congregation.

PHONE NUMBERS

In support of this conceptual purpose the WSWG requests permission to publish your telephone number:

My telephone number may be published on the church web site:  YES  NO

RECEIVING E-MAIL

The WSWG has developed the capability of cloaking email addresses so that our leadership can be contacted via email without revealing the recipient's address to the sender. This capability can be selectively turned on or off depending on whether or not an individual gives permission to allow email communications to originate from the Congregation's web site. Emails generated from the web server rather than an individual's computer provide an extra layer of security for the recipient.

Asynchronous email communications are quickly becoming the preferred tool for many busy people to conduct business and to keep in touch remotely with others sharing common interests. Allowing people to communicate with you via email about topics related to your leadership role will foster swift and easy communication.

WSWG requests permission to enable web-based email communication to you from the church web site:

E-Mail communications may be sent to me from the church web site:  YES  NO
